

CAREERS IN INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT DAY

Wednesday, November 8, 2017

Connelly Center, Villanova University

Sponsors: Villanova University Partnership with Catholic Relief Services · The Career Center
College of Liberal Arts & Sciences · Graduate Studies · Global Interdisciplinary Studies · College of Engineering
College of Nursing Center for Global & Public Health · Villanova School of Business Center for Global Leadership
Office for Mission and Ministry · Southeastern Pennsylvania Consortium for Higher Education

VILLANOVA
UNIVERSITY

Program Overview

Opening Plenary: 1:30 – 2:30 p.m. (Cinema)

“The Challenges Facing Tomorrow’s Humanitarians”

Patricia McIlreavy, Vice President, Humanitarian Policy & Practice, InterAction

Breakout Roundtables: 2:30 – 4:30 p.m. (Villanova Room) (Starting @ 2:30 and repeating @ 3, 3:30, 4 p.m.)

Meet with professionals working in the fields of international relief and development. They’ll share their career paths, the work that they and others do, and offer career advice on how to break into the field and get a foot in the door. These are women and men who haven’t lost their vision or passion and are using their skills to further the global common good.

Advocacy / Communications

Alliance to End Hunger - Nathan Magrath, Manager of Communications and Outreach – Communication and publication support, assists in advocacy activities, provides assistance in the development and implementation of the initiative through a USAID grant aimed at capacity building of civil society coalitions in the developing world.

Communications and Public Relations for Responsible Business; Corporate, Financial and Non-profit

Citi Global Public Affairs - Elizabeth (Patella) Kelly, VU '03, Senior Vice President on Citi’s Global Public Affairs team. She provides communications support for Citi Foundation, Corporate Sustainability, Citi Ventures, Citi Community Development, Citi Women, HR and Diversity.

Foundations and Philanthropy

Inter-American Foundation – Manuel Nuñez, VU '03, Managing Director of the Inter-American Foundation’s Office of External and Government Affairs and Villanova School of Business Management and Operations Department

Geospatial Mapping Technologies

Catholic Relief Services Consultant - Eric Wagner, VU '12 - GIS Laboratory Manager for the Department of Geography and the Environment , GIS mapping projects to capture and analyze geographical data critical to delivering aid and development

Government Foreign Service

United States Agency for International Development (USAID) – Bryan Enslein VU '07, Engineer - Foreign Service Officer- Problem Solver - Project Manager - Program Designer; Pamela Foster ret., Foreign Service Center and has held long and short term overseas assignments

Humanitarian Engineering

Villanova University, Virginia Smith, Civil and Environmental Engineering, worked for USAID as an associate scientist for Adapt Asia-Pacific Project and as Water Coordinator in Afghanistan, also spent two years in the Peace Corps

International Non-Government Organizations

Catholic Relief Services - Jack Norman, Director of Talent Management and has provided country level leadership in Africa, South Asia, and Eastern Europe

Law, Refugees and Immigration

Cabrini University - Abel Rodríguez, JD, Assistant Professor of Religion, Law, and Social Justice, held a split position as the immigration specialist at the Defender Association of Philadelphia and staff attorney at Nationalities Service Center and also worked as the Langer, Grogan and Diver Fellow in Social Justice at Esperanza Immigration Legal Services

Management and Logistics in Global Development

Chemonics International - Sean Miller VU '12, Project Management Associate, Supply Chain Solutions working on contract management and compliance

Oxfam

Oxfam - Mary Marchal VU '04, Campaign Alliances Manager, managing relationships in a program of over 200 influential women

Sustainability

Villanova University, William Lorenz, Director of Sustainable Engineering Program and former co-founding partner for ERM, a global provider of environmental, health, safety, risk, sustainability and social consulting services.

United Nations

Villanova University, Department of Political Science - Shigehiro Suzuki, served with the UN from 2000-2004 at the Office for Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs

World Bank

World Bank - Kathleen Krackenberger VU '05, Experience in international health and development economics, with an emphasis on designing, implementing, and managing health, education, and social protection operations in fragile and emergency contexts.

Opening Plenary: “The Challenges Facing Tomorrow’s Humanitarians”

Patricia McIlreavy is the vice president of the Humanitarian Policy and Practice team at InterAction, an alliance of U.S.-based relief and development organizations. She leads InterAction’s efforts to assist the humanitarian community, including InterAction members, UN agencies, and the Red Cross/Red Crescent Movement, to address the needs of vulnerable populations. Through her current role, she represents InterAction membership, expanding the position, partnerships and influence of NGOs in multilateral and bilateral fora and events. McIlreavy serves on the advisory board of the Charity & Security Network.

McIlreavy’s experience in the humanitarian field began in 1993, when she joined USAID’s Office of US Foreign Disaster Assistance. After serving on USAID’s Disaster Assistance Response Team to Rwanda in 1994, McIlreavy took on a position with the International Rescue Committee’s Rwanda program. Her subsequent career with the IRC spanned 14 years, during which she held Country Director posts in Sudan, Tanzania, Burundi, and Regional Director for the Horn and East Africa. As Regional Director, a post she held for five years, she oversaw IRC’s relief, rehabilitation, and post-conflict development programming totaling over $134m in Chad, Sudan, South Sudan, Kenya, Uganda, Ethiopia, Eritrea and Somalia. Directly prior to joining InterAction, she was based in Amman, Jordan, for 3 years, working as an international management and training consultant with a diverse group of organizations, including humanitarian NGOs, the Red Cross movement, United Nations agencies and NATO.

McIlreavy holds a master’s degree in International Affairs from the American University School of International Service and was a 2014-2015 fellow of MIT’s Seminar XXI program. In 2014, she was selected for inclusion into the United Nation’s Humanitarian Coordinator pool. www.interaction.org

BREAKOUT ROUNDTABLES – CAREER PATHS

ADVOCACY is a process by which individuals or groups aim to educate the policymakers and the wider public, and influence public policy and resource allocation decisions within political, economic, and social systems and institutions".

Nathan Magrath serves as Manager of Communications and Outreach for the Alliance to End Hunger. In his capacity, Nathan provides basic communications support for the Alliance, including the writing of articles, speechwriting, newsletter publication, website management, and social media. Nathan also assists in advocacy activities, specifically—but not limited to—international food security policy and programs. Under the National Alliance Partnership Program, he provided assistance in the development and implementation of the initiative through a USAID grant aimed at capacity building of civil society coalitions in the developing world. He also represents the Alliance at various international food security-related functions in Washington and elsewhere. Nathan Holds a BA in Political Science from Hope College and an MA in International Development Administration with a concentration on policy analysis from Western Michigan University.

The Alliance to End Hunger engages diverse institutions to build the public and political will to end hunger at home and abroad. The Alliance is a coalition of over 90 members—corporations, non-profits, faith-based organizations, universities, foundations, international organizations, and individuals. While driving factors may vary among membership, there is a shared conviction that addressing hunger is essential. The Alliance's work is based upon four pillars: Fostering Strategic Partnerships; Building Political Commitment; the domestically-focused Hunger Free Communities Initiative; and the internationally-focused National Alliance Partnership Program.

COMMUNICATIONS AND PUBLIC RELATIONS FOR RESPONSIBLE BUSINESS: CORPORATE, FINANCIAL AND NON-PROFIT

Elizabeth (Patella) Kelly (VU '03) is Senior Vice President on Citi's Global Public Affairs team. Joining Citi in December of 2014, she provides communications support for Citi Foundation, Corporate Sustainability, Citi Ventures, Citi Community Development, Citi Women, HR and Diversity.

Elizabeth has a blend of financial, corporate and non-profit communications experience, most recently managing communications for the social impact fund Acumen in New York. Prior to that, she spent nearly ten years on the agency side, working for six years at Brunswick Group supporting corporate reputation campaigns for various companies including Visa Inc. and UBS. She began her career at boutique financial public relations agency Sloane & Co.

Elizabeth received a BA from Villanova University, and resides in the suburbs of New Jersey with her family.

FOUNDATIONS The Council on Foundations defines a foundation as an entity that supports charitable activities by making grants to unrelated organizations or institutions or to individuals for scientific, educational, cultural, religious, or other charitable purposes. While foundations are often primarily engaged in grant making activities, some may engage in their own direct charitable activities or programs.

Manuel A. Nuñez (VU '03 MBA): After graduating from Eastern Mennonite University with a B.A. in biology, Nuñez earned his MBA from VSB in 2003 before pursuing his post-baccalaureate in special sciences at the University of Pennsylvania. Professionally, he served in multiple positions, including associate director of Global Marketing at Merck, before becoming the managing director of the Inter-American Foundation's Office of External and Government Affairs. He remained an active member in the VSB community throughout his career, serving as the chair for the Center for Global Leadership Advisory Council from 2011-2014, and as an adjunct professor. In 2010, Nuñez was awarded the inaugural Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A. Alumni Medallion, which is presented to outstanding alumni who have distinguished themselves in their career and who provide extraordinary service to VSB. He joined VSB's faculty as a visiting instructor for the Management & Operations department.

The Inter-American Foundation, an independent U.S. government agency, was created by Congress in 1969 to channel development assistance directly to the organized poor in Latin America and the Caribbean. The IAF has carried out its mandate by responding with grant support for the most creative ideas for self-help received from grassroots groups and nongovernmental organizations. It also encourages partnerships among community organizations, business and local government directed at improving the quality of life for poor people and strengthening democratic practices.

MAPPING AND GEOGRAPHIC ANALYSES are techniques employed to visualize, analyze, and better understand our earth, its terrain, its features, and relationships between them. Technologies supporting this sector of industry include: Geographic Information Systems (GIS), Global Positioning Systems (GPS), and Remote Sensing (RS). Using modern geography and maps, analysts study, in 2 and 3 dimensions, the interactions between people and place at scales ranging from the smallest villages to entire continents.

Eric Wagner (VU' 12) geography graduate and the GIS Laboratory Manager for the Department of Geography and the Environment. He has provided geospatial support for CRS since 2015 by providing in-country training to CRS staff by helping with: mapping of water resources, aerial imagery collection via drone, and providing general technology support. He has also advised the work of Villanova undergraduate GIS interns who have worked in the United States and travelled to Madagascar.

Kristen Black is a senior in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and is double majoring in Geography and Environmental Science. She served as a Geographic Information Systems (GIS) Intern with Catholic Relief Services (CRS) this past summer in Madagascar. Her work consisted of surveying farmers' rice fields to help map and better understand agricultural processes in Manajary. Her work and its future will help to provide food security to these areas that are particularly susceptible to famine and drought. She also provided land management assistance through video production to raise awareness of the necessity behind sustainable agricultural and agroforestry techniques.

CRS is an emerging leader in the area of Information and Communications Technology for Development (ICT4D), having rapidly built its capabilities through field-driven project needs and ideas, coupled with thought leadership and technical support sourced internally and from a broad base of partners. ICT4D is one of CRS' 5 Core Competencies of the agency's 2014-2018 Strategic Plan.

CRS is the official international humanitarian agency of the Catholic community in the United States. The agency alleviates suffering and provides assistance to people in need in 93 countries, without regard to race, religion or nationality. CRS' relief and development work is accomplished through programs of emergency response, HIV, health, agriculture, education, microfinance and peacebuilding. www.crs.org

GOVERNMENT FOREIGN SERVICE, UNITED STATES AID FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT (USAID) Foreign Service Officers in USAID's overseas offices address global challenges by applying their technical knowledge, program design, management, and evaluation expertise to improve health and food security, address global climate change, and help countries achieve the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

Bryan Enslein (VU '07) is a Foreign Service Officer with the US Agency for International Development (USAID). Mr. Enslein currently serves as an Engineering Advisor for the Bureau of Economic Growth, Education and Environment in Washington DC. In this role he advises on USAID funded infrastructure activities around the globe. Mr. Enslein has worked for USAID on projects in over 15 countries, serving as Regional Engineering Advisor to Southeast Asia and the Head of Roads and Vertical Structures in Afghanistan. Prior to joining USAID, he was a Peace Corps Volunteer in Ecuador and consulted for PBS&J. Mr. Enslein graduated with a master's degree in water resources engineering from the University of Texas at Austin and an undergraduate degree in civil engineering from Villanova University.

Ms. Pamela Foster joined USAID as a Foreign Service Officer in 1990, after an initial eight-year stint as a Civil Service employee in the Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance. During her tenure with the agency, she has held short- and long-term assignments in Bangladesh, Cambodia, Egypt, Eritrea, Iraq, Liberia, Mozambique, Pakistan, and Sudan. In 2009, she was assigned as the Liaison Officer to the then-newly established U.S. Mission to the African Union in Addis Ababa. Recently retired from serving as an Assignment and Performance Counselor in the Office of Human Capital and Talent Management where she used her experience as a program officer to advise new and incoming Foreign Service Officers. Ms. Foster earned her Master's Degree in Curriculum and Instruction and a Bachelor's degree from the College of Education at the University of Maryland, College Park.

USAID is the lead U.S. Government agency that works to end extreme global poverty and enable resilient, democratic societies to realize their potential.

HUMANITARIAN ENGINEERING seeks to use its knowledge, experience, and technical skills to directly improve the wellbeing of marginalized or underserved communities.

Professor Virginia Smith is an Assistant Professor in the College of Engineering at Villanova University. After earning a bachelor's degree in Civil and Environmental Engineering from Georgia Institute of Technology, Dr. Smith joined the Peace Corps and spent two years working in Samoa on the National Water Project and a myriad of village development projects. She later earned her master's degree and PhD at the Jackson School of Geosciences at the University of Texas at Austin (UT), and continued there as a post-doctoral researcher studying sediment transport. Dr. Smith then worked as an associate scientist for USAID's Adapt Asia-Pacific Project, and in 2014, was named the Water Coordinator for USAID in Afghanistan, overseeing water and natural resource management projects in Central Asia. An expert in hydrology, fluvial geomorphology and sediment transport, Dr. Smith has authored several articles on these topics. At Villanova, she is teaching courses on fluid mechanics, hydrology, water resources and GIS.

INTERNATIONAL NON-GOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS (INGOs)

Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) are non-profit, voluntary citizens' groups, which are organized on local, national or international levels. Task-oriented and driven by people with a common interest, NGOs perform a variety of services and humanitarian functions such as direct service and support, charitable giving, and advocacy. International Non-Governmental Agencies work in the global arena.

Jack Norman, Director of Talent Management, joined CRS in 1999 and has provided country level leadership in Africa, South Asia, and Eastern Europe. Over the years, Jack has managed the Foundation and Corporate Engagement unit in Baltimore, the AIDSRelief program in Uganda, earthquake response in Pakistan, CRS drought response in Eritrea, and the civil society programs in Macedonia. Prior to joining CRS, Jack managed a program for unaccompanied minors in post-genocide Rwanda and a mobile clinic program in war torn Somalia. In his current role, Jack leads a dedicated team supporting Integrated Talent Management, with a focus on recruiting, developing, assessing and promoting high caliber staff to support agency goals and strategy. Prior to international development work, Jack taught in the Calgary Public School System and managed the Interfaith outreach program for new immigrants. Jack holds a Bachelor of Education degree from the University of Calgary and an MBA from the University of Phoenix.

Catholic Relief Services (CRS) carries out the commitment of the Bishops of the United States to assist the poor and vulnerable overseas. CRS is motivated by the Gospel of Jesus Christ to cherish, preserve and uphold the sacredness and dignity of all human life, foster charity and justice, and embody Catholic social and moral teaching. It promotes human development by responding to major emergencies, fighting disease and poverty, and nurturing peaceful and just societies. It also serves Catholics in the United States as they live their faith in solidarity with their brothers and sisters around the world. www.crs.org

LAW, REFUGEES AND IMMIGRATION is a field that helps and protects refugees and people displaced by violence, conflict and persecution. Around the world, they help them survive, recover and build a better future.

Abel Rodríguez, JD graduated from Cabrini in 2001 with a bachelor's degree in Spanish, and returned to his alma mater as an assistant professor in 2015, teaching courses on religion, law, and social justice. Prior to Cabrini, Abel held a split position as the immigration specialist at the Defender Association of Philadelphia and staff attorney at Nationalities Service Center, in which he advised noncitizen clients about the immigration consequences of their criminal convictions and represented the formerly convicted in deportation proceedings. He also worked as the Langer, Grogan and Diver Fellow in Social Justice at Esperanza Immigration Legal Services, where he represented individuals with disabilities and older adults in their immigration matters.

In addition to his Cabrini degree, Abel earned a Juris Doctor at the University Of Pennsylvania Law School, a Master of Theological Studies at Harvard University, and a Master of Arts in Latin American Studies at Stanford University.

MANAGEMENT & LOGISTICS IN GLOBAL DEVELOPMENT is a field through which people who have access to economic and social resources provide assistance and support to the world's most vulnerable populations to help them lead more productive and independent lives. It is a way to provide the most basic of human rights – health, education, and human security – to populations lacking the resources to do so independently, with the aim of providing long-term and sustainable solutions to reduce the incidence of global poverty and inequality.

Sean Miller (VU '12), The Global Health Supply Chain Program—Procurement and Supply Management (PSM) project is the primary vehicle through which USAID 1) procures and provides health commodities, 2) provides technical assistance to improve partner countries' management of the supply chain, and 3) collaborates with key international stakeholders to support global health initiatives. All health commodities, ranging from HIV medication to malaria bednets and medical laboratory equipment, that USAID utilizes for its projects around the world are procured and distributed by PSM. The project is responsible for all aspects of the supply chain, beginning with supply planning, sourcing, fulfillment, warehousing, distribution, and delivery. PSM has a wide range of professionals from some of the largest companies in the world performing tasks and activities that contribute to the seamless success of the project. My role on the project is the management of the Prime Contract between our Contracting Officer's from USAID and Chemonics. Due to the breadth and complexity of a $9.5 billion project, my main responsibility is to ensure consistent application of contract language across 35 different country field offices. I work closely with both home-office and field-office staff to ensure the project is meeting its statement of work as defined by USAID and reporting to our USAID colleagues on key indicators and deliverables. I also work closely with Chemonics' Risk Management and Compliance departments to make sure our project follows US Government regulations and policies as they relate to procurements, insurance, and shipping, among others. I received a Master's Degree, International Affairs, Concentration in International Development Studies and International Security from The George Washington University and my undergraduate degree from Villanova University majoring in Political Science, Africana Studies and Psychology.

Chemonics' work in international development is rich with promise and idealism. Our work also requires practical decision making, often in challenging and time-sensitive environments. We have experience in more than 150 countries implementing successful projects that combine our regional experience and technical strengths. We are organized regionally to respond quickly and effectively to local and client demands and better harness our experience in Africa, Asia, Europe and Eurasia, Latin America and the Caribbean, and the Middle East.

OXFAM – ADVOCACY TO THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT working to change the laws and practices that keep people trapped in poverty and to change the way people think about poverty and its causes.

Mary Marchal (VU '04) is Campaign Alliances Manager at Oxfam America. In this role she manages relationships in a program of over 200 influential women with a network of nearly 200 civil society leaders and government officials from developing countries. Alongside and consistently inspired by these partners, Mary leads many of Oxfam's advocacy efforts to improve the U.S. government's foreign aid and development policy & practice so it can more effectively fight poverty, while at the same time supporting our partners in their work to reduce poverty in their communities and countries. In nearly 10 years working with Oxfam America she has been based in Washington, DC, Addis Ababa and now Boston, MA and conducted research in Bangladesh, Cambodia and Kenya. Prior to joining Oxfam, Mary worked on policy & advocacy issues with Refugees International, the Council on Competitiveness and The Center for Public Policy and Private Enterprise in Washington. She attended Villanova University for her undergraduate studies and holds a Master of Public Policy from the University of Maryland.

Oxfam is a global organization working to end the injustice of poverty. We help people build better futures for themselves, hold the powerful accountable, and save lives in disasters. Our mission is to tackle the root causes of poverty and create lasting solutions. Oxfam's approach is about tackling the conditions that cause poverty in the first place, rather than the distribution of material goods. We start by asking questions and challenging assumptions. What are the root causes of poverty? What can we do to change the power dynamics that keep people poor? These questions inform the four categories into which our work falls: saving lives, programs to overcome poverty and injustice, campaigning for social justice and educate the public.

SUSTAINABILITY "Enough, For All, Forever," A Working Definition (William Lorenz)

William Lorenz is the founder and director of Villanova's Sustainable Engineering Program. He has over 45 years of experience in the fields of Environmental and Sustainable Engineering. William worked for 16 years for Sun Oil Company where he contributed to new corporate air, water, hazardous waste and audit programs as the first set of federal legislation was developed and implemented. In 1984, he co-founded and established the Management Consulting Practice of Environmental Resources Management (ERM), a leading global provider of health, safety, risk, and social consulting services and sustainability related services. William has a BS in Chemical Engineering, an MS in Environmental Engineering, and an MBA.

Villanova University's Master of Science in Sustainable Engineering (MSSE) is a multi-disciplinary degree, ideal for those who are interested in gaining further expertise and knowledge with regard to the full environmental, social and economic aspects of sustainable engineering. A unique degree useful for engineers and non-engineers alike, MSSE graduates can advance in areas such as corporate sustainability, project management green construction, and more. Most courses are available through E-Learning, which offers much-needed convenience and flexibility allowing students to earn their degree entirely on line. www1.villanova.edu/villanova/engineering/grad/masters/sustainable.html

THE UNITED NATIONS (UN) is an international Organization committed to maintaining international peace and security, developing friendly relations among nations and promoting social progress, better living standards and human rights. The UN works on a broad range of fundamental issues, from environment and refugee protection and disaster relief; to counter terrorism, disarmament and non-proliferation; to promoting democracy, human rights, gender equality and the advancement of women; to governance, economic and social development and international health.

Professor Shigehiro (Shige) Suzuki is a full time faculty member in Villanova University's Political Science Department. Professor Suzuki is currently also a visiting faculty for the Center for Peace and Justice. After graduating from Tokyo University, he entered the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs and worked at the Japanese Embassy at Nairobi, Kenya from 1994 to 1996. His responsibilities there involved monitoring and analyzing development and human rights situations in Uganda, Kenya, and Rwanda, and the aftermath of genocide. After briefly working for the Brookings Institution in DC, from 2000 to 2001, he worked at the Executive Director's Office and the Office of the Emergency Program of the UNICEF in New York. From 2002 to 2004 he also worked at the Office for Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs in the United Nations in NY. Throughout his stints at the Brookings Institution as well as the United Nations, Professor Suzuki tirelessly worked to protect and assist refugees and internally displaced persons who were affected by natural and human disasters. In 2011, he served as executive director of Japan Platform, an NGO, working on relief efforts after the earthquake and tsunami that hit northern Japan. His research areas are the protection of and assistance to Internally Displaced Persons, and nuclear policies in Asia, specifically Japan. At Villanova, Professor Suzuki has been teaching a variety of subjects including International Organization (United Nations), East Asian Politics, Refugees and Displaced Persons, Theories of War and Peace, International Relations, and American Foreign Policy.

WORLD BANK GROUP, established in 1944, is one of the world's largest sources of funding and knowledge for development solutions. The WBG has 189 member countries and consists of five specialized institutions: the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD), the International Development Association (IDA), the International Finance Corporation (IFC), the Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency (MIGA), and the International Centre for the Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID). The WBG uses its financial resources and experience to assist developing countries to reduce poverty, increase economic growth, and improve quality of life. The World Bank Group has set two goals for the world to achieve by 2030: (i) end extreme poverty by decreasing the percentage of people living on less than $1.90 a day to no more than 3%; and (ii) promote shared prosperity by fostering the income growth of the bottom 40% for every country.

Ms. Krackenberger graduated from Villanova in 2005 with degrees in Political Science, Sociology, and Honors. She holds an MSc in Development Studies from the London School of Economics and Political Science, an MA in Applied Economics from Johns Hopkins University and has approximately 11 years of experience in international health and development economics, with an emphasis on designing, implementing, and managing health, education, and social protection operations in fragile and emergency contexts.

Post-baccalaureate Internship & Overseas Volunteer Opportunities

Acumen

76 Ninth Avenue, Suite 315, New York, NY 10011

<http://acumen.org/get-involved/work-with-us/>

<http://acumen.org/>

Acumen is changing the way the world tackles poverty by investing in companies, leaders and ideas. We invest patient capital in businesses whose products and services are enabling the poor to transform their lives. Founded by Jacqueline Novogratz in 2001, Acumen has invested more than $88 million in 82 companies across Africa, Latin America and South Asia. We are also developing a global community of emerging leaders with the knowledge, skills and determination to create a more inclusive world. This year, Acumen was named one of Fast Company's Top 10 Most Innovative Not-for-Profit Companies. Learn more at www.acumen.org and on Twitter @Acumen.

Global Fellows Program <http://acumen.org/leaders/global-fellows/>

Regional Fellows Program <http://acumen.org/leaders/regional-fellows/>

American Friends Service Committee

1501 Cherry Street, Philadelphia, PA 19102

www.afsc.org

Joan Marshall-Missiye, Senior Program Officer for International Programs / jmarshall-missiye@afsc.org

Since the AFSC was founded in 1917, the organization has worked to promote lasting peace with justice in communities worldwide. AFSC International Programs currently implements 23 programs in 13 different countries across four different regions.

At AFSC, there are both paid and unpaid internship and fellowship opportunities in Philadelphia and overseas. AFSC's programs develop leaders for social change. They build bridges of understanding and active alliances among young people—and communities—of diverse backgrounds and perspectives.

<https://www.afsc.org/volunteers-interns-fellows>

Amigos de Jesús Home for Children

126 Woodland Ave., Malvern, PA 19355

amigosdejesus.org

Julie Quesada, Recruiter / volunteermanager@amigosdejesus.org

Amigos de Jesús is a Home for Children in Honduras with various volunteer opportunities, including a long-term volunteer program (one year), short-term volunteer program (summer/6-weeks), and spring break volunteer trips. The work of volunteers is widely varied depending upon the needs present and the abilities of volunteers, but volunteers can expect to really partake in the daily mission and challenge of taking care of 130 children.

Augustinian Volunteers

214 Ashwood Road, Villanova, PA 19085

www.augustinianvolunteers.org

Joanna Bowen, Associate Director, joannabowen.osavol@gmail.com

The Augustinian Volunteers are Catholic men and women who wish to serve God's people in partnership with the Augustinians and others. The service of the volunteers is with established educational, social, and health programs, and varies according to the needs of the sponsoring site and the individual volunteer. The experience of the Augustinian Volunteers is designed to facilitate a person's desire to serve others. It is also focused on the volunteer's personal and spiritual development in the Augustinian tradition. By building and living in community with other volunteers and forming relationships with local Augustinian Communities, the volunteers' lives will be enriched as they enrich the lives of others.

Augustinian Volunteers enter the service experience with a spirit of openness, an enthusiasm for building relationships and an excitement to learn and grow. Domestic volunteers commit to serve 40-50 hours per week for 10 months (September through June) and international volunteers serve for 11 months (mid-January through mid-December). Although service site partnerships can vary slightly from year to year, most volunteers serve in well established placements in one of three main areas: Education, Campus Ministry and Social Service. A match between volunteer and a partnering service site is made based upon the preferences and experience of the individual as well as the needs of the partnering school or organization. It is the goal of the AV program to place volunteers in service settings both where their skills and experience will be well utilized and where he or she will be able to learn and grow.

Bread for the World

425 3rd Street SW, Suite 1200, Washington, DC 20024

www.bread.org

Jackie Jones, Internship/Employment, jjones@bread.org

Bread for the World is a collective Christian voice urging our nation's leaders to end hunger at home and abroad. We work closely with affiliated institutions such as the Bread for the World Institute, the Alliance to End Hunger, and the Modernizing Foreign Assistance Network to change policies, programs, and conditions that allow hunger and poverty to persist.

Intern positions are available in the Washington, DC office of Bread for the World. Length varies from three months to one year. One-month internships are also available for students who need to fulfill field placement requirements. Applicants are matched to specific jobs on the basis of their background, skills, and interests as well as the needs of the organization.

Intern positions are available in the following departments: Administration, Church Relations, Communications, Development and Member Services, Government Relations, Grassroots Organizing, and Bread for the World Institute. Each position is designed to provide information on public policy and the legislative process and to sharpen professional and organizational skills.

Catholic Relief Services (International Development Fellows Program)

228 W. Lexington St., Baltimore, MD 21201

www.crs.org

Neda Sobhani, IDFP Program Officer, neda.sobhani@crs.org

Catholic Relief Services (CRS) is the official overseas relief and development organization of the American Catholic community and one of the largest relief and development organizations in the world, reaching over 100 million people in 93 countries. CRS promotes human development by responding to major emergencies, fighting disease and poverty, and nurturing peaceful and just societies.

CRS is recruiting for its International Development Fellows Program (IDFP) and for overseas internships. The IDFP gives people who are interested in a career in international relief and development an opportunity to increase their overseas experience and gain exposure to our programs. Each year, CRS places 20-25 Fellows in CRS country programs overseas. Assignments are for one year, starting in late summer. Specific job responsibilities vary greatly from one country to another depending on the country program's focus (Agriculture, Health, Peacebuilding, Education, Microfinance, or a combination of these). The goal of the IDFP is to place Fellows in positions where they can draw on their previous education and work experience, while broadening their skills. Many of our fellowships lead to regular positions with Catholic Relief Services.

How to Apply

All interested candidates must apply online. The online application process starts in September and ends in November. CRS will conduct phone interviews with qualified candidates. Please note we will also test language ability based on your stated level in your application in a phone language assessment.

Catholic Volunteer Network

6930 Carroll Avenue, Suite 820, Takoma Park, MD 20912

www.catholicvolunteernetwork.org

Katie Delaney, Program Manager – From Service to Sisterhood, kdelaney@catholicvolunteernetwork.org

Catholic Volunteer Network, established in 1963, is a non-profit membership organization of over 170 domestic and international volunteer and lay mission programs. In the past year, more than 18,500 volunteers and lay missionaries served in these programs throughout the U.S. and in 109 other countries. Collectively these volunteers impacted the lives of more than 2,821,000 individuals through a variety of services including education, social work, health care, sustainable farming initiatives, prison ministry, homeless services, and much more. Catholic Volunteer Network fosters and promotes full-time domestic and international faith-based volunteer service opportunities for people of all ages, backgrounds, and skills. As the leading membership organization of Christian volunteer and mission programs, we support and enhance the work of our members through volunteer recruitment, training and resources, networking opportunities, and advocacy.

Habitat International Global Village Program

1424 K St. NW, Suite 600, Washington, D.C

www.habitat.org

Jenna Grubman, JGrubman@habitat.org

Habitat for Humanity is a nonprofit, ecumenical Christian ministry founded on the conviction that every man, woman and child should have a decent, safe and affordable place to live. We have more than 1,500 local affiliates in the United States and more than 70 national organizations around the world. Together, we have helped to build or repair more than 800,000 houses and serve more than 4 million people worldwide.

Jesuit Volunteers

801 St. Paul Street, Baltimore, MD 21202

www.jesuitvolunteers.org

Kevin Breen, kbreen@jesuitvolunteers.org / recruiting@jesuitvolunteers.org

The Jesuit Volunteer Corps offers women and men an opportunity to put their faith into action by working full-time for one or two years, for justice and peace in 37 US cities and 6 countries abroad.

Ignited by faith and informed by the Jesuit tradition and Ignatian spirituality, Jesuit Volunteers take on some of the world's toughest challenges, permanently transforming themselves and the communities they serve. As a Jesuit Volunteer you will have the opportunity to work in fields such as education, advocacy, healthcare, direct service, and community outreach serving communities and individuals who are low-wage earners, homeless, unemployed, refugees, diagnosed with AIDS, elderly, street youth, former gang members, abused, mentally ill, developmentally disabled, and others who strive to find justice in their lives. Almost 300 schools, nonprofit agencies, and grassroots organizations across the world count on JVs to provide essential services.

Manna Project International

www.mannaproject.org

Taylor Brown, recruitment@mannaproject.org

Manna Project International (MPI) is a non-profit organization where young professionals can apply their passions, experience, and education through service to communities in need. With the vision of communities serving communities, MPI's model is a collaborative community-based approach to development. At our sites in Ecuador and Nicaragua, groups of year-long volunteers live and work together implementing a range of education, health and livelihood community development programs.

Maryknoll Lay Missioners

P. O. Box 307, Maryknoll, NY 10545

www.mklm.org

Timothy O'Connell, timothy.oconnell@villanova.edu

Maryknoll Lay Missioners is a Catholic organization inspired by the mission of Jesus to live and work with poor communities in Africa, Asia, and the Americas, responding to basic needs and helping to create a more just and compassionate world.

Some of our ministries include, but are not limited to: health and health care; educational/vocational instruction; sustainable development; civil and human rights; and pastoral ministry.

Service Area: Bolivia, Brazil, Cambodia, El Salvador, Kenya, and Tanzania

Mennonite Central Committee

900 East Howell Street, Philadelphia, PA 19149

eastcoast.mcc.org

Danica Roki, Human Resources Generalist, danicaroki@mcc.org

Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) is a relief, development and peace organization with some 1,000 workers serving in 60 countries. MCC seeks to demonstrate God's love by working among people suffering from poverty, conflict, oppression and natural disaster. MCC serves as a channel of interchange by building relationships that are mutually transformative. MCC strives for peace, justice and dignity of all people by sharing our experiences, resources and Christian faith. We have programs for young adults to serve internationally with a partner organization, paid summer service worker positions and also domestic career opportunities for a variety of majors currently available. Check this site for Internships and overseas volunteer programs <http://mcc.org/get-involved/serve/volunteer>

Mercy Volunteer Corps

1325 Sumneytown Pike, P.O. Box 901, Gwynedd Valley, PA 19437

www.mercyvolunteers.org

Sara Renzor, Community Coordinator for Mid-Atlantic, SaraReznor@mercyvolunteers.org

Mercy Volunteer Corps promotes social change by placing and supporting volunteers for one year of service with people who are poor and marginalized in the U.S. and South America. Mercy Volunteers work in education, healthcare, and social services while living together in a community and growing spiritually

Positions are available in homeless and community outreach, peace and justice advocacy, immigration, legal work, AIDS ministry, elderly outreach, domestic violence shelters, counseling, teaching (elementary, secondary, special education), tutoring (GED, adult literacy), after school programs, healthcare, nursing, therapy (physical, occupational, speech), and volunteer coordination.

Service Area: Continental United States, and Guyana, South America.

Peace Corps

201 Varick Street, Suite 1025, New York, NY 10014

www.peacecorps.gov

Patrick McGettigan, Field-Based Recruitment, Philadelphia / South Jersey, pmcgettigan@peacecorps.gov

As the preeminent international service organization of the United States, the Peace Corps sends Americans abroad to tackle the most pressing needs of people around the world. Peace Corps Volunteers work at the grassroots level toward sustainable change that lives on long after their service—at the same time becoming global citizens and serving their country. When they return home, Volunteers bring their knowledge and experiences—and a global outlook—that enriches the lives of those around them.

Opportunities:

Be part of a new generation of leaders making a difference. Peace Corps Volunteers improve the lives of people in communities around the world, inform the global perspectives of Americans, and turn a life-defining experience into a lifetime of opportunity. As a Peace Corps Volunteer, you work directly with communities on their most pressing issues while gaining a competitive advantage in today's global economy with international experience, cross-cultural understanding, and fluency in a foreign language. Peace Corps experience can springboard careers in the government, nonprofit, academic, and private sector.

Profugo

9 Rittenhouse Place, Ardmore, 19003

www.profugo.org

Jenny Koleth, getinvolved@profugo.org

Profugo is a grassroots non-profit organization involved in International Development. Our mission is to provide communities with access to the tools and resources that enable them to build a better life. Our vision is creating a world where brighter futures are possible because all communities have equal access to a better quality of life.

We use our Center of Development (COD) model as a channel in which to work alongside a community to generate social change that is sustainable, cost effective, and long lasting. By doing so, Profugo is creating a global neighborhood where skills and resources are shared to improve healthcare practices and alleviate poverty in developing countries. Our COD model consists of three prongs; Health & Wellness, Human Capital, and Social Capital. Some of our current projects include Clean Water Access, Tailoring Training, English Language School, Health & Wellness Education, Agriculture, and Natural Resource Management.

Service Area: Profugo's first COD is located in the Wayanad District of southern India.

Projects Abroad

80 Broad Street, Floor 32, New York, NY 10004

www.projectsabroad.org/

Peter Slowe/ info@projects-abroad.org

Projects Abroad is the world's leading international volunteering organization, with headquarters in the UK and offices and projects in over 50 countries around the world. With our global reach, we offer the widest range of volunteer projects and locations, and our own dedicated staff are on hand 24/7 to make sure our volunteers make the most of their experience and leave a lasting, positive impact.

Unite For Sight

234 Church Street, 15th Floor, New Haven, CT 06510

<http://www.uniteforsight.org/>

Lanch McCormick, Executive Director / lmccormick@uniteforsight.org

Unite For Sight supports eye clinics worldwide by investing human and financial resources in their social ventures to eliminate patient barriers to eye care. Unite For Sight applies best practices in eye care, public health, volunteerism, and social entrepreneurship to achieve our goal of high-quality eye care for all. The programs are locally led and managed by ophthalmologists at Unite For Sight's partner eye clinics. Unite For Sight's international eye care services with partner local eye clinics are provided year-round and are comprehensive, including examinations by local eye doctors, diagnosis and care for treatable conditions, education, and preventative care. Outreach services are brought to the people in their villages, in some cases including villages seven or more hours from the clinics. These patients are provided with regular follow-up care by our outreach teams throughout the year. To date, we have provided eye care services to more than 1.9 million people worldwide, including more than 91,506 sight-restoring surgeries.

Opportunities: Global Health Leadership Unpaid Internship (New Haven, CT) / Volunteer Abroad in an Immersive Global Health Program

United States Agency for International Development (USAID)

Washington, DC

<http://www.usaid.gov>

USAID's mission statement highlights two complementary and intrinsically linked goals: ending extreme poverty and promoting the development of resilient, democratic societies that are able to realize their potential. We fundamentally believe that ending extreme poverty requires enabling inclusive, sustainable growth; promoting free, peaceful, and self-reliant societies with effective, legitimate governments; building human capital and creating social safety nets that reach the poorest and most vulnerable.

Internship opportunities: <https://www.usaid.gov/work-usaid/careers/student-internships>

Graduate Programs

American University School of International Service

4400 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20016

www.american.edu/sis

Stephen W. Angelsmith / sangelsmith@american.edu

Masters of Arts International Development - The International Development (ID) degree at American University trains students to participate effectively in driving socio-economic, political, and environmental change throughout the world. The program's primary focus is the improvement of opportunities for the world's poor and disenfranchised.

The M.S. in Development Management offers a unique opportunity for combining development and public administration to provide state of the art training and practice in development management. The degree is designed both for practitioners and students with prior field experience who plan to work on development programs and projects either within the United States or in developing countries. The approach emphasizes social learning, action research, institutional development, and social development management, with the objective of increasing the responsiveness of organizations to the publics they are designed to serve and enhance the capacity of these communities to further their own development.

MA in International Peace and Conflict Resolution - The International Peace and Conflict Resolution degree (IPCR) focuses on the causes of war and organized violence and the processes of conflict analysis and resolution. IPCR is founded on the belief that violence is neither necessary nor inevitable, and that change toward social justice and sustainable peace can best be approached from a collaborative and humanistic perspective that engages people in constructive conflict resolution. With a strong emphasis on the blending of theory with practice, peace studies with conflict resolution, and always with a search for alternatives to violence, IPCR stands apart as a reputable and unique academic and professional training program.

Arcadia University Master in International Peace and Conflict Resolution

450 S. Easton Road, Glenside, PA 19038 <https://www.arcadia.edu/academics/programs/international-peace-and-conflict-resolution>

Melissa Moy / moym@arcadia.edu

A Philadelphia-area master's degree program that provides a theoretical foundation and practical applications of peace studies, social justice, and social change through project-based learning, internships and study abroad experiences. Our three-semester*, cohort-based Master's program will train you to be an advocate, activist, and social entrepreneur who is able to develop innovative approaches to global and local peacebuilding. You will be well-prepared for careers in the nonprofit/nongovernmental organization sector, as well as in other public, private, and academic fields. Through project-based learning, global fieldwork, and internships, you will develop practical, operational skills such as program planning, mediation, and conflict assessment. In your classes, you'll work with interdisciplinary faculty scholars to understand the social, political, historical, and economic contexts in which peace and conflict are produced.

Brandeis University Master of Arts in Sustainable International Development

415 South Street, Waltham, MA 02454-9110

<http://heller.brandeis.edu>

Naomi Porper / nporper@brandeis.edu

The Master of Arts in Sustainable International Development (SID) is a multidisciplinary development graduate training program that prepares students to become development professionals meeting the needs of poor communities throughout the world. Founded in 1994, SID seeks to provide its students with a sound theoretical foundation for understanding different approaches to development, as well as a broad vision of how these approaches function in diverse societies. Students also acquire practical skills that will enable them to work directly with governments, non-profits and other organizations to alleviate poverty, provide health, education, sanitation and services, mitigate the effects of climate change and create more effective paths towards sustainable development.

SID offers an innovative two-year professional program that draws upon concepts of justice and social change and is based on a firm understanding of political and economic institutions, ecology, gender, human rights and ethics.

Overall, the SID Curriculum aims to train future development leaders who can combine theoretical, conceptual and historical knowledge about deep rooted poverty, inequality and injustice with practical skills to address current and future economic, social, health, educational and environmental challenges in the world's poorest communities.

The Catholic University of America, Master of Arts in Integral Economic Development Policy/Management (IEDP/IEDM)

The Busch School of Business and Economics, 620 Michigan Ave NE, Washington, DC 20064 <http://integraldevelopment.cua.edu/>
Debra Egan, Graduate Program Director / egan@cua.edu | integraldevelopment@cua.edu

Build skills for your career in international development. In high demand by employers, this groundbreaking approach seeks to strengthen civil and social institutions required for sustainable development. Centered on a holistic view of the person in society, quantitative economics, management, and policy-focused courses provide advanced training to design, implement, manage, and evaluate development programs. Mentored by expert faculty, each student conducts a real-world applied research project, designing a survey to assess a development activity.

Complete the M.A. Integral Economic Development Policy in two years, the M.A. Integral Economic Development Management (IEDM) in one year including summer, or enroll part-time. In DC, heart of the international development community, prepare to advance your career with international organizations and government, businesses, consulting firms, non-profits and foundations to expand economic prosperity.

Columbia University School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA)

420 W. 118th Street | New York, NY 10027 <https://sipa.columbia.edu/>
Grace Han, Executive Director of Admission / gh2122@sipa.columbia.edu

SIPA is the world's most global public policy school with a focus on issue realms such as global finance and economics, public health, climate change, energy, development and sustainability--all of which increasingly occupy a transnational space and implicate a global commons, global public goods, and challenges of global collective action. The Master of International Affairs, Human Rights and Humanitarian Policy (MIA) and Master of Public Administration (MPA) curricula develop professionals who understand complex transnational issues and can manage real-world organizations.

Drexel University, Dornsife School of Public Health, Certificate in Global Health

Nesbitt Hall, 3215 Market St., Philadelphia, PA, 19104 <http://drexel.edu/dornsife/global/office-of-global-health/>
Colleen P. Baillie, / cpb32@drexel.edu

Drexel's accredited online Certificate in Global Health prepares students, professionals, and practitioners to work in dynamic environments and with diverse populations. Students will be prepared to respond competently to health challenges that transcend geographic and cultural boundaries, as well as identify and analyze factors that impact disparities in health status, health resources, and access to health information and services, particularly for marginalized and vulnerable groups.

Eastern University Master of Business Administration in Economic Development

1300 Eagle Road, St. Davids, PA 19087 www.eastern.edu/sld
Lindsey Perry, Development Programs Coordinator / lperry@eastern.edu

Eastern University's MBA in Economic Development program serves to prepare theologically informed students who have a strong sense of social justice, possess great business acumen, and who display a keen desire to serve God and society through business. The program takes seriously its mandate to be the intersection between market excellence and mission impact.

For more than 29 years, the Economic Development program has been equipping grace-filled servants to partner with the poor in cities such as Nairobi, Mumbai, and Mexico City, as well as in rural communities all over the world. We serve alongside individuals, businesses, churches, and ministries with a program that recognizes the multifaceted causes of poverty.

In both the international and urban concentration's, students learn alongside faculty and mentors who have hands-on experience, and a deep appreciation for how business can service society. Required field internships and the option to live and serve in depressed neighborhoods, as you study, will provide an incarnational setting to foster learning from those you are called to serve.

Elliott School of International Affairs at the George Washington University

1957 E St. NW Suite 301 Washington, D.C. 20052 <https://elliott.gwu.edu/graduate-admissions>
Joshua Fulton, Assistant Director of Graduate Admissions / esiagrad@gwu.edu

The Elliott School of International Affairs at The George Washington University is one of America's leading professional schools of international affairs. Located in the heart of Washington, D.C., its mission is to educate the next generation of international leaders, conduct research that advances understanding of important global issues and engage the policy community in the United States and around the world. The Elliott School prepares students for an extensive range of international affairs careers in the business, nonprofit and governmental sectors. Our alumni can be found in leading decision-making positions all over the world.

Each year, approximately 350 students enter our two-year masters degree programs on Asia, Europe and Eurasia, Latin America, international development, international security, international trade and investment policy, international scientific and technological issues, and international affairs. Another 20-25 enroll in a one-year master's degree program for mid-career professionals. We offer joint degree programs with GW's schools of business, law, and public health, and graduate concentrations in those same fields as well as in international education.

Fordham University's Graduate Program in International Political Economy & Development (Fordham IPED)

441 E. Fordham Rd., Dealy Hall E-157, Bronx, NY 10458

iped.fordham.edu

Dr. Henry Schwalbenberg, Program Director / schwalbenber@fordham.edu / iped@fordham.edu

Fordham University's Master of Arts program in International Political Economy and Development (IPED) offers a unique and innovative interdisciplinary approach to analyzing contemporary global economic relations. Over the years, the Fordham IPED Program has produced many graduates who have gone on to satisfying careers in international banking and finance, government service, and international humanitarian assistance. Our graduates have also compiled a very distinguished record of obtaining prestigious awards ranging from Fulbrights to US Presidential management Fellowships. The consistent success of our graduates has given Fordham IPED and international reputation for academic excellence.

George Mason University Schar School of Policy & Government

3351 Fairfax Drive, MS 3B1, Arlington, Virginia 22201

<https://schar.gmu.edu>

Shene Salih, Assistant Director of Graduate Admissions / ssalih4@gmu.edu

George Mason University's Schar School of Policy and Government prepares undergraduate and graduate students to be leaders and managers who solve problems and advance the public good in all sectors and levels of government—in the United States and throughout the world. Located where policy happens—just 3 miles from the Pentagon, 4 miles from The White House, and 6 miles from the U.S. Capitol Building—students are connected to jobs, internships, networking, and experiences that can only be found in the Washington, D.C., area.

Georgetown University, Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service

3700 O St NW, Washington, DC 20057

<http://sfs.georgetown.edu/graduate/>

Katie Li, Global Human Development Program / katie.li@georgetown.edu

Georgetown University's Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service (SFS), founded in 1919, is a premier school of international affairs that provides a rigorous education grounded in both theory and practice while instilling the Jesuit values of service. SFS offers master's degrees in eight different programs; in thematic programs in international development, international relations, or security studies or in regional studies studying one of the major regions of the world.

Johns Hopkins University, Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS)

1740 Massachusetts Ave., N.W. Washington, DC 20036

<http://www.sais-jhu.edu/>

David Spaulding, Assistant Director of Admissions / david.spaulding@jhu.edu

A division of The Johns Hopkins University, the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) is a global institution that offers students a truly international perspective on today's critical issues. A presence on three continents sets SAIS apart and is one of our greatest strengths. We not only teach about the world, we are in the world.

SAIS's mission is to provide an interdisciplinary professional education that prepares a diverse graduate student body for internationally related positions of responsibility; to foster research, scholarship and cross-cultural exchange; and to contribute knowledge, expertise and leadership to the global community.

A SAIS education combines the academic depth of a graduate school with the practical policy focus of a professional school. SAIS graduates are known for their interdisciplinary breadth and solid foundation in economics—prerequisites for a successful career in international relations. The result: innovative thinkers and problem-solvers with the economic and cultural expertise to confront complex global challenges.

The Middlebury Institute of International Studies at Monterey (MIIS)

460 Pierce St, Monterey, CA 93940

<http://www.miis.edu/>

The Middlebury Institute of International Studies at Monterey provides international professional education in areas of critical importance to a rapidly changing world, including international security, human rights and social change, language and culture, sustainable development, and global management. We prepare students from all over the world to make a meaningful impact in their chosen fields through degree programs characterized by immersive and collaborative learning, and opportunities to acquire and apply practical professional skills.

Princeton University, Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs

Robertson Hall · Princeton, NJ 08544-1013

<http://www.princeton.edu/graduate-academics/programs/mpa>

Melissa Lee, Admissions Officer / melissa@princeton.edu

The Master in Public Affairs (MPA) program offers rigorous preparation for international and domestic policy careers.

This two-year full-time residential program cultivates among its students and graduates a lasting commitment to public service.

Through the core curriculum and a wide variety of elective courses, students learn analytical skills that address the political, economic, quantitative, behavioral and normative aspects of complex policy problems. The program also promotes understanding of the distinctive historical, institutional and cultural contexts of domestic and international policy making.

The Woodrow Wilson School believes that it is essential for students of public and international affairs to understand how issues of gender, race, class and cultural diversity affect public policy decisions, implementation and outcomes. The School is committed to incorporating these issues into its curriculum, public affairs programming, research colloquiums and other activities.

The New School, Julien J. Studley Graduate Program in International Affairs

72 Fifth Avenue, 7th Floor, New York, NY 10011

<http://www.newschool.edu/public-engagement/ma-ms-international-affairs/>

Merida E. Gasbarro, Assistant Director of Admission / escandom@newschool.edu

Named one of the top international affairs programs by the Foreign Policy Association, the Julien J. Studley Graduate Program in International Affairs (SGPIA) is distinctive in the New School tradition: critical, engaged, and committed to social justice.

Students at SGPIA gain a truly global and multidisciplinary perspective on international problems. The research faculty is comprised of prominent scholars from around the world with backgrounds in anthropology, sociology, political science, media, and economics. The program also draws on the wide range of leading experts and professionals in New York, who bring to the classroom the most recent international experience with issues such as social and economic rights, urban and community development, new media and technology, environmental justice, migration and refugees, international law, conflict, and peacebuilding.

Tufts University, The Fletcher School

160 Packard Ave., Medford, MA 02155

<http://fletcher.tufts.edu/>

Rochelle Sharit / rochelle.sharit@tufts.edu

Our job is to prepare our graduates to be practitioners in every dimension of international relations: economics, finance, diplomatic history, politics, culture, security and many other disciplines. The challenges we face in this turbulent 21st century quite literally transcend borders – we must be ready to connect in every sense of the word.

We seek to build partnerships between nations, government agencies and the public/private sector in order to be ready to shape international issues and events. Our extensive network of graduates today serve in every venue in the global milieu – heads of state and government, political leaders in power and opposition, judges, diplomats, senior military officers, corporate leaders at every level, international bankers, development officials. The Fletcher School not only “knows the world,” but is part of shaping it through the global work of our graduates.

SIT Graduate Institute

1 Kiping Road, PO Box 676, Brattleboro, VT 05302

www.sit.edu/graduate

Mary Kay Sigda, Senior Admissions Office / marykay.sigda@sit.edu

SIT Graduate Institute, formerly known as School for International Training, is a nonprofit, accredited graduate school that offers master's degrees and graduate level certificates in TESOL, international education, sustainable development, peacebuilding, humanitarian aid and crisis management, youth leadership, environmental management, climate change and global leadership.

SIT Graduate Institute's experiential master's degree programs equip students with theoretical knowledge, intercultural communication skills, and work experience in their field. Students learn how to examine critical issues from multiple perspectives, acquire intercultural communication skills, and enhance their ability to work toward greater social justice. They are exposed to a variety of theories and ideas while learning from faculty, practitioners, fellow students, and their own experience.

SIT offers master's degree programs in both online and on-campus formats. Both full-time students just entering the field and working professionals can find a program ideally suited to their career goals.

University of California - Berkeley, Master of Development Practice

311 Wellman Hall, Berkeley, Berkeley, CA 94720

<http://mdp.berkeley.edu>

The Berkely MDP is designed to meet the challenges by combining hand-on learning and field experience with rigorous training in a broad range of academic disciplines. It aims to train the future leaders who will implement these new ideas to meet the challenge of sustainable development. Based on a solid foundation of health, natural, social and management sciences, graduates will be well equipped to take on roles in global nonprofits, private enterprises, innovative startups, governments, economic and public policy thinktanks and international firms among other.

University of Denver, Josef Korbel School of International Studies

2201 S. Gaylord St., Denver, CO 80208
korbeladm@du.edu

www.du.edu/korbel/

The Josef Korbel School offers unique, flexible, interdisciplinary degree programs that provide the knowledge and skills you need to succeed in your career and to understand the challenges of our globalizing world.

- Bachelor of Arts degree program in International Studies
- Dual BA/MA program
- Master of Arts degree programs
- PhD degree program in International Studies

University of Maryland School of Public Policy

3111 Van Munching Hall, College Park, MD 20742

<http://publicpolicy.umd.edu>

Taryn Faulkner, Admissions Director / faulkner@umd.edu / policy-admissions@umd.edu

The Maryland School of Public Policy offers masters degrees in public policy and public management designed to meet the unique needs of the many different students attracted to international and public service. We have specializations in:

- International Security and Economic Policy
- International Development
- Environmental Policy
- Energy Policy
- Social Policy
- Education Policy
- Health Policy
- Public Sector Financial Management
- Public Management and Leadership
- Federal Acquisitions Management
- Non-profit Management and Leadership

Graduates go on to work in the public sector, non-profits, NGOs and private industry.

University of Notre Dame, Master of Global Affairs (MGA)

1010 Jenkins Nanovic Halls, Keough School of Global Affairs, Notre Dame, IN 46556

keough.nd.edu/master-of-global-affairs/

Jody Ruskowski / keough-admissions@nd.edu

This 2-year professional degree will prepare you for skilled, effective leadership and careers in government, nongovernmental and civil society organizations, and the private sector. The Master of Global Affairs integrates rigorous coursework, close engagement with multi-disciplinary faculty and students from around the world, and extended field work through the Integration Lab (i-Lab) and partners — in Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America, the Middle East, and Washington, D.C. — working to address global challenges.

University of Washington, Master of Arts in Applied International Studies (MAAIS)

Box 353650, Seattle, WA 98195-3650

<https://jsis.washington.edu/maais/>

Andrea Sadlier, Graduate Program Advisor / maais@uw.edu

The UW Master of Arts in Applied International Studies is global in scope and multidisciplinary in nature. The MAAIS curriculum prepares you to succeed in the increasingly complex and interconnected world of international affairs.

The MAAIS degree is designed for professionals looking to broaden their global perspective; dive into the political, social, economic and cultural aspects of international policy and decision making; and more effectively engage with governments, international and nongovernmental organizations, foundations and companies to tackle critical global challenges.

Villanova University, Graduate Program in Sustainable Engineering, International Development Track

800 Lancaster Avenue, Villanova, PA 19085

vusustainableengineering.com

Iain Hunt, International Development Initiative Manager / iain.hunt@villanova.edu

Sustainable Engineering is a new, cross-cutting discipline within the engineering profession. One of only a few programs in the country, Villanova University's Sustainable Engineering Graduate Program prepares its students to use a whole-systems approach to problem-solving through a lifecycle lens. The Sustainable Engineering for International Development track applies these holistic approaches to the intersection of technology and global development for the preparation of engineering and technical specialists as effective development practitioners. The MS in Sustainable Engineering program is open to both engineering and non-engineering degree holders and may be pursued on campus or entirely online.

Villanova Curricular & Extra-curricular Opportunities

Business Without Borders – Villanova Chapter

Bartley Hall, Room 1006

<https://www.facebook.com/pages/Villanova-Business-Without-Borders/109135242453782>

Debra Arvanites, debra.arvanites@villanova.edu

Business Without Borders is a student group at Villanova whose mission is to use business skills and knowledge to promote the common good. As it relates to international development, our organization partners with Lux-Development, the international aid and development agency of Luxembourg, to provide low interest loans and promote tourism in impoverished areas of Nicaragua. We send students to Nicaragua to meet with, analyze, and support the small and micro sized businesses that have received loans to ensure that the loans are being effectively utilized. In addition, BWB promotes and fundraises for microfinance causes, assists with taxes for low income individuals and families, works with local nonprofits such as Profugo, and hosts various speakers.

Catholic Relief Services Ambassadors – Villanova Chapter

<https://www.facebook.com/Villanova-CRS-Ambassadors-188669351206668/timeline/>
<http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/mission/crs/ambassadors.html>

Sara Vaughan, svaugh1@villanova.edu

CRS Student Ambassador chapters engage the campus community to act on global emergencies and injustices. Ambassadors organize awareness campaigns, prayer services, candlelight vigils, faith-sharing groups, legislative advocacy, and fundraising campaigns for global emergencies as well as participate in CRS programs such as CRS Rice Bowl, CRS Fair Trade and CRS Helping Hands. National and regional conferences and trainings are held each year to bring chapters together and form a national community of students committed to advancing global justice, peace and human dignity.

Engineering Without Borders – Villanova Chapter

Tolentine 113H

<https://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/engineering/service/stem/ewb.html>

Jordan Ermilio, P.E., Director, jordan.ermilio@villanova.edu

Engineers Without Borders - USA (EWB-USA) is a non-profit humanitarian organization established to partner with developing communities worldwide in order to improve their quality of life. This partnership involves the implementation of sustainable engineering projects, while involving and training internationally responsible engineers and engineering students.

International Business Society – VSB

President: Matthew Peer, mpeer@villanova.edu / Advisor: Kim Cahill, kimberly.cahill@villanova.edu

The International Business Society aims to bring U.S. and international students together, host companies and speakers to share aspects of business, and provide students with valuable information regarding jobs, internships, and study abroad opportunities.

Nursing Without Borders – Villanova Chapter

Driscoll Hall

<https://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/nursing/organizations/nwb.html>

vunursingwithoutborders@gmail.com

Villanova Nursing Without Borders (NWB) is an on-campus organization that addresses social injustices surrounding healthcare. Started in 2011 by several nursing students, Villanova NWB serves as a foundation from which Villanova students can tackle injustices within the healthcare system. At the heart of NWB is a desire to move beyond weekly service opportunities and effect lasting change by creating sustainable partnerships with community organizations, both locally and internationally.

Villanova University Campus Ministry Center for Service & Social Justice: International Service Break Experiences

St. Rita Hall

<http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/mission/campusministry/service.html>

Kate Giancatarino MA, MSW, Director, Center for Service & Social Justice, catharine.giancatarino@villanova.edu

The Campus Ministry Office of Villanova University provides opportunities for students, faculty, staff and alumni to serve and learn with community members in the US and abroad. Participants cross boundaries working in partnership with local organizations. Work includes tutoring, visiting the elderly, teaching English, working at AIDS hospices, and building and repairing homes. Through service, education, and reflections, volunteers are transformed by their encounters with people from other cultures, backgrounds, and socio-economic situations. We challenge our participants to think not only about how they can contribute to the efforts of our community partners but what they can learn from the people they meet. We hope this experience helps the participant to develop a personal commitment to advocating for justice upon their return and into the future.

Villanova University Campus Ministry: Post Graduate Service Programs

St. Rita Hall

www1.villanova.edu/villanova/mission/campusministry/service/postgrad.html

Michelle Sherman, Campus Minister for Retreats, michelle.sherman@villanova.edu

Serving in a post-graduate volunteer program after Villanova can be a meaningful way to serve in marginalized communities and engage questions of social justice and solidarity. There are over 200 secular and faith-based service organizations to choose from, so we recommend spending time researching and speaking with friends and mentors about your desire for service.

Why have hundreds of Villanova graduates chosen to dedicate a year (or two!) of their lives after graduation to service? Some of the many reasons why students feel a call to service include:

- Experience during college on a Service and Justice Experience, COV, RUIBAL, MLK Day of Service or St. Thomas of Villanova Day of Service
- Openness to encountering different cultures
- Desire to live out their faith
- Desire to live in a community
- Willingness to place oneself at the margins of society
- Recognition of benefits (graduate student scholarships, real-life experience in a supportive setting, travel)

Service areas, benefits, housing accommodations, and loan deferment, and a variety of other benefits are different for every program. Curious about this process and what a year of service could look like for you?

Villanova University Center For Arab and Islamic Studies

St. Augustine Center, Room 277

<http://www.villanova.edu/artsci/arabislamic/>

Hibba Abugideiri, PhD, Director, hibba.abugideiri@villanova.edu

Villanova University established the Center for Arab and Islamic Studies in 1983 in recognition of the critical importance of Arab and Islamic cultures, which have had a profound impact on the arts and sciences for centuries in the Middle East and elsewhere. Today, international politics and economics are deeply affected by the dynamics in the Arab and Islamic world. Government officials, members of Congress, corporations, banks, the media and researchers stress the need for professionals who have the specialized knowledge essential for comprehending the geostrategic, socioeconomic, religious and intellectual dimensions of the region. The Center's interdisciplinary program serves undergraduates who wish to emphasize Arab and/or Islamic studies in their education. The course of studies offers a basic grounding in the Arabic language and enables students to focus on the complexity of the Arab and Islamic worlds in their understanding of international issues and world cultures. The program also prepares students for work in government or business related to the region or advanced professional or graduate studies.

Villanova University Center for Global and Public Health, College of Nursing

Driscoll Hall

<https://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/nursing/centers/globalhealth.html>

Ruth McDermott-Levy, PhD, RN, Director, ruth.mcdermott.levy@villanova.edu

The mission of the Center for Global and Public Health is to leverage the interdisciplinary expertise, resources and scholarly endeavors of Villanova University and its partners to serve as a locus for integrative and experiential educational experiences that examine the relationships between biological, cultural, political, and socioeconomic factors that influence health and illness worldwide.

To advance the mission, the Center develops domestic and international partnerships that facilitate learning and inquiry. Its focus on interdisciplinary collaboration is designed to provide a comprehensive approach to understanding the complex health needs and challenges of populations.

Villanova University Center for Global Leadership, Villanova School of Business

Bartley Hall, Room 2059

www.villanova.edu/CGL

Kim Cahill, Director, kimberly.cahill@villanova.edu

The Center for Global Leadership (CGL) contributes to the development of Villanova School Business's global strategy, emphasizing integrated international business studies and responsible global leadership. CGL serves as a hub for new ideas, resources and innovations for VSB's international curricular initiatives, research, service and outreach activities. CGL is designed to assist and strengthen Villanova's participation in the global communities in which our students will work and contribute. As such, CGL was created to advance ethical and responsible global leadership for the betterment of business and society.

Villanova University Center for Peace & Justice Education

Corr Hall, Room 106

www1.villanova.edu/villanova/artsci/peaceandjustice.html

Kathryn Getek Soltis, PhD, Director, kathryn.geteksoltis@villanova.edu

The Center offers an interdisciplinary academic program, hosts various Peace and Justice student organizations, and sponsors numerous lectures, workshops, and films throughout the year.

We offer a minor (18 credits) or concentration (24 credits) in Peace and Justice. Students in any College are eligible. This degree prepares students to develop critical thinking skills in order to secure peace, understand unjust structures, and become agents of change. The program offers dynamic courses that focus on domestic and global issues of social justice and peace.

Our Peace and Justice alumni have gone on to serve in careers addressing the injustices in our world.

Villanova University Center for Research and Fellowships (CRF)

Garey Hall, Room 38

curf.villanova.edu

Dr. Michael T. Westrate, Director, michael.westrate@villanova.edu

Center for Research and Fellowships is a results-oriented team of professionals that supports Villanovans at all levels—undergraduate, graduate, alumni, and faculty—to enhance their career trajectories through mentoring, research funding, and assistance in winning competitive awards.

Villanova University Department of Education and Counseling

Mendel Science Center, Room G-44 F

www.education.villanova.edu

Carol Thon, Program Coordinator, carol.thon@villanova.edu

Prepare to teach abroad with a double major in Education, a minor in Educational Policy and Leadership or by electing courses such as Teaching English to English Language Learners, Global Racism in Education, Urban Education, Introduction to Disability Studies, Methods of Teaching and others. Selected courses may include first-hand field experiences in city schools and an opportunity to tutor one-on-one with students of all nationalities. Develop the awareness you will need to forge successful teaching experiences in schools abroad. Personal interviews will help you choose your most effective preparation among these alternatives.

Villanova University Department of Geography and the Environment

Mendel Science Center, Room G67

<http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/artsci/geoenv.html>

Francis A. Galgano, PhD, Department Chair, francis.galgano@villanova.edu

How do you see the future? More of everything: food, energy, and peace between nations? Or, do you foresee more population growth, new diseases, conflict, urban sprawl, pollution, ethnic violence and starvation? Will there still be enough energy and clean water for your children? The world is changing at unprecedented rates, primarily as a result of human activity. We live in an integrated global environmental; and, more than ever before, we need people who understand how things are linked: that's what geographers do!

Opportunities for increased well-being of humans and the environment abound. On the other hand, competition for resources such as fresh water and oil is reaching crisis proportions. The future of humanity depends on skillful management of our environment. Expert care of the environment is needed to maintain supplies of food, natural products, water, and the other resources on which life depends. Geographers study places and the nature, dynamics and interactions of the natural and human systems in those places.

Geography focuses on the relationships between people and the natural world, the choices people make, the effects of past actions on people today, and the effects of today's choices on future generations. Finally, geography majors learn to use a suite of high-technology research platforms such as Geographic Information Systems, Global Positioning Systems, Satellite Image, and more! Thus, geographers offer an attractive set of skills to governmental and non-governmental agencies that are focused on international development.

Villanova University Department of Political Science

St. Augustine Center, Room 202

<http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/artsci/psc.html>

Matthew Kerbel, PhD, Department Chair, matthew.kerbel@villanova.edu

Our mission is to enable you to understand politics in the United States, in other countries, and among nations. Our students gain substantive knowledge of American politics, comparative politics, international relations, and political theory, while learning to read critically and analytically, evaluate qualitative and quantitative social science data, construct and present evidence-based arguments, and become discriminating consumers of political news and information. We seek to satisfy and stimulate your curiosity with a rigorous education in political science. Our graduates become capable analysts of politics who use their political science training in their work and as engaged citizens.

Villanova University Department of Romance Languages and Literatures

St. Augustine Center, Room 303

www1.villanova.edu/villanova/artsci/romancelanglit.html

Carmen Peraita, PhD, Department Chair, carmen.peraita@villanova.edu

The Department of Romance Languages and Literatures comprises a community of professors with a rich research agenda from many parts of the world. Through its emphasis on perfecting language learning, the faculty values the importance of language not only as a tool of communication but also as an essential means to develop cultural competency and a deeper understanding of literary and cultural production. The Department offers opportunities for studies abroad through its ties with universities in other countries, such as Brazil, Chile, France, Italy, and Spain.

If you consider a career in international relief and development, or in any global entity (be it business or NGO), you will need, more than ever, (inter)cultural literacy that includes language competency. In addition to offering language courses, the Department of Romance Languages offers courses in literature and cultural studies which are crucial to the understanding the rich and diverse cultures of Brazil, the Francophone and Hispanophone world, in addition to the rapidly changing European cultural milieu. Studying abroad gives you an excellent opportunity to perfect your language ability and to get deeply acquainted with other cultures and acquire cultural literacy, a sine-qua-non in the globalized world.

Villanova gives you an opportunity to spend a semester (or in some cases even a year!) or even just a Summer abroad and we hope you will take this opportunity and enroll in one of the study abroad programs. More info:

http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/artsci/romancelanglit/resources/studyabroad_guidelines.html

Villanova University - Emerging Panama Program

Tolentine 140

<http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/engineering/service/learning/panama.html>

Prof. Frank Falcone, AP, P.E., D.WRE, CAPT, USN (ret'd), Director, Professional Development & Experiential Education, frank.falcone@villanova.edu

The Emerging Panama Program is a collaborative effort among faculty and students from all four undergraduate colleges here at Villanova University and numerous organizations and institutions in Panama. These joint and collaborative efforts include the following:

1. Water Resources Master Plan (WRMP): The faculty and students of the College of Engineering have been working with the Fundacion Parque Natural San Francisco in Wacuco, Panama, led by Padre Pable Kasubowski, to develop a long term WRMP for the 8000 + residents that live in that region.
2. International Technology & Sustainability (GEV 3000): Students from all four undergraduate colleges at Villanova can apply to take this course. The WRMP, discussed above, is the central focus of this course. Students enrolled in this course are expected to travel to Panama to participate in this Program during the Spring Break.
3. The Panama Canal Authority (ACP): Students from any of the four undergraduate colleges at Villanova can apply for internships at the Panama Canal Authority. In order to apply, students must prepare a 1 page proposal of their interests in interning at ACP. Once approved by VU and ACP, students will travel to Panama and report to ACP for work. These unpaid internships can be a minimum of 1 month and a maximum of 3 months.
4. The University of Santa Maria La Antigua (USMA): Villanova University is establishing a collaborative relationship with USMA which is located in Panama City.
5. The City of Knowledge (CoK): The City of Knowledge is located near the Mira Flores Locks of the Panama Canal and is an international 'clearing house' or 'incubator' for emerging educational and/or industrial activities in Panama. As part of a required senior capstone course, the faculty and students of the Department of Civil & Environmental Engineering at Villanova will conduct an overall Storm Water Management Plan (SWMP) for CoK.

Villanova University Engineering International Service Learning Program

Tolentine 113H

<http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/engineering/service.html>

Jordan Ermilio, P.E., Director, jordan.ermilio@villanova.edu

The vision of the Engineering Service Learning Program is to be nationally recognized for creating innovative learning experiences for engineering students that demonstrate excellence in engineering education with a global perspective. Our commitment is to engage engineering students in experiential learning while providing services that reinforce engineering fundamentals, as well as a commitment to life-long learning and service to society. The College has established strong relationships and ongoing projects in Cambodia, Nicaragua, Panama and the Philippines.

Villanova University Innovation, Creativity and Entrepreneurship Institute (ICE)

Falvey Library, Ground Floor

<http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/business/centers/ice.html>

II Luscri, Executive Director, ii.luscri@villanova.edu

The ICE Institute is an innovative driver of scholastic, educational, and professional development opportunities in the related areas of creativity, innovation, and entrepreneurship within the Villanova community. The ICE Institute has a multi-disciplinary and cross-college focus and seeks to advance the University's strategy by fostering cross-college learning and embedding entrepreneurial thinking more deeply in the Villanova culture. Villanova students are already known to be among the best, most well-rounded there is - The ICE Institute seeks to provide opportunities to develop and highlight their entrepreneurial spirit as well.

Villanova University Institute for Global Interdisciplinary Studies

Garey Hall, Room 36

<http://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/artsci/global.html>

Chiji Akoma, Acting Chair, chiji.akoma@villanova.edu

The department is comprised of three majors, namely, GIS (with eight specializations); Gender and Women's Studies (GWS), and Peace and Justice Studies (PJ). Students for the GIS major are required to declare a specialization in one of the following interdisciplinary area studies: Africana Studies, Arab & Islamic Studies, Asian Studies, Cultural Studies, Irish Studies, Latin American Studies, and Russian Area Studies. A student may also opt for an Individually Designed Specialization after meeting the requirements. We also have minors in Critical Language and Cultural Studies, which include Arabic, Chinese, Japanese, and Russian studies.

Villanova University Latin America Studies Program

St. Augustine Center, Room 484

<http://1villanova.edu/villanova/artsci/latinamerstudies.html>

Cristina Soriano, Ph.D., Director, cristina.soriano@villanova.edu

The Villanova Latin American Studies Program, established in 1988, offers students in all of the university's four undergraduate colleges the opportunity to acquire a broad multi-disciplinary understanding and appreciation of Latin America. Students may pursue either a minor or the more comprehensive major. Both are designed to complement a variety of majors; many concentration and minor courses can also be used to satisfy core curriculum requirements.

Since language is essential to understanding any culture, a degree of language proficiency is an integral part of both the concentration and the minor. And, since living in Latin America offers invaluable experience in language, culture, and contemporary life and issues, students in the program are strongly encouraged to spend a summer or semester there. In addition to its attractive course offerings, the Program sponsors overseas programs in Costa Rica, Chile, a Sustainable Development program, and a variety of scholarly and cultural events for the Villanova community.

Villanova University Master of Public Administration

St. Augustine Center, Room 484

www1.villanova.edu/villanova/artsci/publicadmin/academics/graduate.html

Catherine E. Wilson, PhD, Chair, catherine.e.wilson@villanova.edu

The MPA Program is a degree program focused on leadership and management in the public sector. Our students go on to work in government, nonprofits, and the private sector. You will learn skills like human resources management, financial management, organization theory, strategic planning, and statistics. We offer a certificate in nonprofit management, too. You can also cater your degree to your interests and take up to 4 courses in other programs. We have both an on-campus program as well as a fully online degree option.

Villanova University Office of Education Abroad

Middleton Hall, 2nd Floor

<https://www1.villanova.edu/villanova/vpaa/abroad.html>

Elizabeth Campanella, Director, elizabeth.campanella@villanova.edu

The Office of Education Abroad (OEA) helps students embed a semester, year-long, or summer education abroad experience into their undergraduate curriculum. Many opportunities exist for study, service-learning, internships, and directed research all over the world - last year, Villanova students studied in 37 different countries. Staff from OEA and returned study abroad students will be on-hand to discuss these many options and to highlight particularly strong programs that operate in the developing world.

Career Networks

A GUIDE TO GREEN CAREERS

Make A Living,
Make A Difference

A Guide to Green Careers - Renewability. Sustainability. Efficiency. These three words describe the engine that will drive the economic growth in the near future and for decades to come. As the world's economy goes, so goes its jobs market. This guidebook has been created to help readers better understand exactly what lies ahead for job seekers in a renewable, sustainable and more efficient world. If you are interested in finding a career where you can make a difference while making a living, this guidebook is for you. learnhowtobecome.org/green-careers

Alliance for Peacebuilding

The Alliance for Peacebuilding (AFP) is a global membership association of more than seventy peacebuilding organizations, 1,000 professionals, and a network of more than 15,000 people developing processes for change in the most complex, chaotic conflict environments around the world. AFP amplifies the strengths of its members and works collaboratively on issues that are too large for any one organization to tackle by itself. allianceforpeacebuilding.org

Brought to you by the community of

Certified

Corporations

B Corp Jobs Board lists openings at certified B Corps, which are companies that meet rigorous standards of social and environmental performance, accountability, and transparency.

<http://www.bcorporation.net/community/jobs-board>

BSR

The Business of a Better World

Business for Social Responsibility (BSR) is a fast-paced, entrepreneurial culture where highly talented and passionate people thrive. We rely on mutual trust and good judgment, as well as clear operational guidelines and systems, to achieve our mission. Our mission is to work with business to create a just and sustainable world. We envision a world in which everyone can lead a prosperous and dignified life within the boundaries of the Earth's natural resources. <https://www.bsr.org/en/>

CHRISBLATTMAN

International development, politics, economics, and policy

Dr. Chris Blattman, an Assistant Professor of Political Science & International and Public Affairs at Columbia University, uses field work and statistics to study poverty, political participation, the causes and consequences of violence, and policy in developing countries. He offers excellent advice on academics and preparing for and seeking a job in international development. chrisblattman.com/tag/development-jobs

CSIS

CENTER FOR STRATEGIC & INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

CSIS has developed practical solutions to the world's greatest challenges and is dedicated to finding ways to sustain American prominence and prosperity as a force for good in the world. In this collection of audio, video, and short papers, Ms. Bieniek and Ambassador Garvelink have brought together a group of fascinating people from the U.S. government, the United Nations, the private sector, and the international NGO community to share their experiences. <https://www.csis.org/about-us/careers>

devex

Do Good. Do It Well.™

A Devex Career Account is your international development career headquarters. Whether you're looking for a job, consulting assignment, or the latest career advice - join thousands of other professionals who rely on Devex to navigate a career in global development and get full access the world's largest international development job board. devex.com

DevNetJOBS.org

International Development Jobs and Consulting opportunities

Fast-track your job search in the international development sector. Get access to hundreds of member-only jobs including jobs with short closing dates, those meant for restricted circulation, and those shared by other members. Get Headhunted: Let international development recruiters find you! Feature yourself on our homepage and circulate your profile to over 16,500 international development recruiters. devnetjobs.org

Founded in 1918, the mission of the Foreign Policy Association today, as it has been throughout its 95-year history, is to serve as a catalyst for developing awareness, understanding, and informed opinion on U.S. foreign policy and global issues. Through its balanced, nonpartisan programs and publications, the FPA encourages citizens to participate in the foreign policy process. fpa.org

FROM POVERTY TO POWER

This blog is written and maintained by Duncan Green, strategic adviser for Oxfam GB and author of 'From Poverty to Power'. How to get a job in Development – an FP2P guide. I won't give advice on what to study – if you're reading this, it's probably too late anyway. But in any case, qualifications are not enough – you need to get involved in organizing relevant activities at your university. Next think what kinds of experience will help – experience often marks you out more than gaining another post graduate qualification, but you have to find some way to get over the inevitable first-rung problem of 'how can I get experience when I haven't got enough experience to land a job' – it's not easy, but it can be done. Visit the Blog and learn from the experience of others. oxfamblogs.org/fp2p/?p=12644

The Gateway offers a comprehensive list of jobs and internships with the latest opportunities to advance your career in the field of microfinance and financial inclusion. <http://www.microfinancegateway.org/jobs-internships>

Global Development Professionals Network

Promoting understanding, dialogue and debate among global development professionals supported by

BILL & MELINDA
GATES Foundation

The aim of the new network is to offer a space where professionals can network as well as share knowledge and expertise. We hope to achieve this through a blend of comment, analysis, online discussions and offline events, recognizing that the day-to-day lives of development professionals are constantly in flux as a result of changes in technology, policy and collaborations across the public and private sectors. theguardian.com/global-development-professionals-network/2013/aug/27/global-development-flow-chart

A source for job openings from members of the GIIN Investors' Council and other impact investing leaders. <https://jobs.thegiin.org/jobs/>

The Half the Sky Movement is cutting across platforms to ignite the change needed to put an end to the oppression of women and girls worldwide, the defining issue of our time. Inspired by journalists Nicholas Kristof and Sheryl WuDunn's book of the same name, Half the Sky: Turning Oppression into Opportunity for Women Worldwide brings together video, websites, games, blogs and other educational tools to not only raise awareness of women's issues, but to also provide concrete steps to fight these problems and empower women. Change is possible, and you can be part of the solution. halftheskymovement.org/pages/volunteer

InsideNGO is a membership association of 330 international non-governmental organizations and sector experts in the international development and relief community that are working together to achieve global impact. <http://www.insidengo.org/jobs/jobstech.htm>

How to Get a Paid Volunteer Job with international NGOs There are a number of organizations known as volunteer service organizations that provide assistance in being the link between volunteers and NGOs. The volunteer service organizations deal with recruitment of volunteers, advertising the available opportunities, researching, consulting and being the liaison for both NGOs and volunteers. jobsinnogs.com/cat/get-paid-volunteer-job-international-ngos

Idealist connects people, organizations, and resources to help build a world where all people can live free and dignified lives. Idealist is independent of any government, political ideology, or religious creed. Their work is guided by the common desire of members and supporters to find practical solutions to social and environmental problems, in a spirit of generosity and mutual respect. They offer many job and volunteer opportunities. idealistcareers.org

Indeed – A Very useful site that searches across many job sites around the world. Searching by conflict and development keywords is best way to use the service. <http://www.indeed.com/>

InterAction is the largest alliance of U.S.-based international nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) working in every developing country. Unlike other non-profit and development-related job boards, Career Connections focuses almost exclusively on jobs in the international NGO community, jobs in the field and jobs at HQ! <http://interaction.org/about/job-openings-interaction>

The International Jobs Center and International Career Employment Weekly are managed by the Carlyle Corporation, a not-for-profit corporation whose only business is to identify and describe international career positions with employers in all sectors of the job market, around the world. They are a comprehensive source of international careers for professionals, including international development jobs. internationaljobs.org

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION CAREERS
A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITY

International Organization Careers lists professional employment opportunities in international organizations. (site sponsored by the US Department of State). <http://iocareers.state.gov/Main/Home>

LINGOs is a not-for-profit consortium of over 75 international humanitarian relief, development, conservation and social justice organizations that share learning resources and experiences. LINGOs operates a Learning Management System that contains hundreds of courses on Leadership and Management Development, Information

Technology, Project Management, Stress Management for Humanitarian Workers, Personal Safety and other topics. ngolearning.org

LinkedIn, the world's largest professional network with 225 million members in over 200 countries and territories around the globe connects professionals to make them more productive and successful. Anyone at all interested in obtaining a first job - or positioning oneself for something new - needs to have an updated, well-written LinkedIn profile. Recruiters are on LinkedIn all day. linkedin.com

TEN Nonprofit Technology Network

Nonprofit Technology Network Board Want a job that makes a difference?

Find full-time jobs and short-term technology opportunities at organizations working for social change. <https://www.nten.org/jobs/>

ONE is a hard-headed movement of people around the world fighting the absurdity of extreme poverty. At the heart of what ONE does is the fundamental belief that the fight of extreme poverty is about Justice, not Charity. Working at ONE isn't a normal 9-5. They are a high-energy and fast-paced global team, and work hard pressing governments to deliver change that will improve the lives of millions of people living in extreme poverty. It's an unbelievable opportunity to change your life while you change the world.

jobs.one.org

pcdn
Peace & Collaborative Development Network

The Peace and Collaborative Development Network (PCDN) is a free professional networking site that works to foster dialogue and sharing of resources in international development, conflict resolution, gender mainstreaming, human rights, social entrepreneurship and related fields. <https://pcdnetwork.org/>

Posner Center provides jobs with a results-focused international development organization. Want to get your foot in the door with an international career or internship? If so, then the Posner Center is the place for you. <http://posnercenter.org/join-us/job-postings-internships/>

ReliefWeb is a specialized digital service of the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA). It has three main functions: collect updates and analysis from more than 4,000 global information sources around the clock; identify and deliver the content most relevant to ReliefWeb's global audience. This content includes country and disaster reports, maps, info-graphics, job announcements and learning opportunities and events of interest to humanitarians and as part of our commitment to humanitarians worldwide, we develop new information products and services that enable humanitarian partners to analyze context and situations and make better decisions. reliefweb.int

ReWork

ReWork matches mission-driven talent to the world's most socially innovative organizations.

<http://www.rework.jobs/>

skoll

Skoll World Forum job list provides an aggregated list of social sector job opportunities and original postings covering unique opportunities in the NGO / Government and CSR space.

<http://skoll.org/community/jobs/>

UN Job List

UNJOBLIST is a very useful site with jobs at UN agencies and other Intergovernmental Organizations. <https://unjoblist.org/>

Unreasonable Institute - Find your dream job with an Unreasonable-supported venture or the Unreasonable Institute. <http://unreasonableinstitute.org/jobs/>

Work for GOOD

With opportunities at all levels for new grads and seasoned pros alike, Work for Good is a national job board dedicated to helping nonprofits and others connect with job seekers looking to make a difference.

<https://www.workforgood.org/>

Internships

Acumen Fund offers national and international employment and internship opportunities to graduate students (preferably MBA) and recent graduates. Short-term associate positions typically offer a modest stipend for a minimum of twelve weeks. Opportunities include implementing innovative, market-oriented approaches in agriculture, education, energy, healthcare, housing, and water/sanitation. acumen.org

Africare offers volunteer opportunities to undergraduate and graduate students or graduates. All volunteer initiatives located in the immediate Washington D.C. area. No volunteer opportunities offered on the African continent. Initiatives would focus on health, water, sanitation, agriculture, women's empowerment, or youth engagement. Times for volunteering subject to schedule of applicant. africare.org

American Friend Service Committee (AFSC) welcomes more than 100 fellows, interns, apprentices, and young volunteers across the globe. Like AFSC, these advocates believe that there is worth in every person and that love can overcome violence and injustice. AFSC's programs develop leaders for social change. They build bridges of understanding and active alliances among young people—and communities—of diverse backgrounds and perspectives. <https://www.afsc.org/volunteers-interns-fellows>

Brac offers internships to students looking for field exposure and professional experience in Brac operations in Bangladesh. The internships is unpaid and the applicant will incur all travel and lodging expenses. Knowledge of Bangla not required to apply. brac.net

Bread For the World offers 1-12 month internships to college or university students in Washington D.C. Activities would include attending hearing on Capitol Hill, planning events and conferences, helping activists, work in social media and marketing, etc. A limited number of long term interns receive compensation. Housing not included. bread.org

Catholic Relief Services offers fellowships to applicants with a graduate degree in a field related to international development and professional proficiency in French, Spanish, Arabic, or Portuguese. Fellowship includes housing, insurance, annual stipend, vacation, and transportation to/from overseas location. Assignments are 8-12 months beginning in September. crs.org

Charity: Water offers internships in the fields of accounting, program finance, and help desk technicians. Internships available to undergraduate or graduate students and vary in time and commitment (vary from an entire semester to a few months, 10-20 hours per week, in the NYC area), and pay (from unpaid to stipend). Offers excellent firsthand experience and work with organization and partnerships. charitywater.org

Doctors Without Borders offers three month internships to undergraduate and graduate students for the spring, summer, and fall. All interns operate out of the New York Office and are paid a minimum of $10 per hour (housing not included). Opportunities vary from medical to marketing to human resources. Candidates are selected on merit in a very competitive applicant pool. doctorswithoutborders.org

Enough, the project to end genocide and crimes against humanity, offers spring, summer, and fall internships which focus on advocacy, policy, communications, and activism. Internships are located in Washington D.C. where interns will plan events, work with politicians, write for the Enough Said blog, attend lectures and presentations, and develop policies and campaigns. enoughproject.org

Friends Committee on National Legislation is a Quaker lobby in the public interest which encourages advocacy for peace and justice. Summer internship opportunities open for undergraduate or graduate/law students. Internship entails 20 hours of work per week (research, presence at FCNL events, delivering letters to Hill offices, etc.) for the months of June and July in Washington D.C. Housing not included. fcnl.org

GlobeMed offers 3-8 week GROW internships to students to strengthen their relationship with their grassroots health partners. The experience encourages students to return to campus in order to share their learning with their chapters in order to improve advocacy the following year. Internship grants may be available. globe.med.org

Habitat For Humanity offers two to twelve month volunteer opportunities to both undergraduates and graduates. Opportunities vary from disaster core volunteers to build volunteers to office work. Paid positions also available. habitat.org

The Hague Institute of Global Justice offers summer fellowships to current and recent graduate students from June 1 to August 31. Fellows will engage in research and other activities of the institute. Funding for housing provided. thehagueinstitute.org/globaljustice.org

InterAction offers spring, summer, and fall internships to anyone with academic, professional, or volunteer experience relevant to the position they are applying for. Internships are unpaid but do offer travel reimbursement. Work would include 20-40 hours per week at the Washington D.C. offices, working with stakeholders, staff, and building relationships. interaction.org

International Crisis Group offers national and international internships throughout the year to undergraduate and graduate students. Internships usually last 3-6 months, require a minimum of 25 hours per week, and are unpaid (though stipends may be provided to offset travel expenses and other incurred expenses due to work). crisisgroup.org

International Medical Corps offers internship opportunities to medical and non-medical graduate students enrolled in universities with programs providing class credit and stipends for internships with international NGOs. This is a highly competitive program. Opportunities are both national and international and include healthcare, emergency response, and sanitation. internationalmedicalcorps.org

International Rescue Committee offers unpaid internships in 22 locations nationwide throughout the year to undergraduate or graduate students or recent graduates. Opportunity would include supporting case work management services to refugees, assisting with refugee health education and promotion, and helping develop and implement programming to support refugee youth. rescue.org

ONE invites undergraduates (minimum of sophomore) to join the fight against extreme poverty by applying to their summer, fall, or spring internships. Internships located in Washington D.C., London, or Berlin offices. Either a small stipend or college credit may be attained through internships. Interns will be expected to work 15-35 hours per week. one.org

Oxfam offers yearlong volunteer opportunities to those with an undergraduate degree. Volunteers work 8-10 hours per week within their communities to facilitate Oxfam's GROW campaign, create plans for local action, and serve as an activist and organizer in the fight against hunger. oxfamamerica.org

Partners for Development offers three or more month internships for fall, spring, and summer. Internships include a small stipend and are available to those pursuing advanced degrees in international development or related fields. More information can be found on their website in the coming months. pfd.org

Partners in Health offers summer and semester internships to university students (undergraduate or graduate). Internships include working directly with staff either on-site or at headquarters in Boston for the purpose of bringing the fruits of modern medicine to those in need. pih.org

The Peace Corps appreciates the contributions of interns in helping to support our mission and takes pride in how this work experience can shape their future careers. The agency offers unpaid internship positions at our headquarters in Washington, D.C., depending on each department's needs. Historically, our intern program has provided direct experience working in public relations, marketing, human resources, web development, program management, and accounting. <https://www.peacecorps.gov/about/agency-jobs/>

Projects Abroad is one of the largest volunteer abroad organizations in the world. Founded in 1992, we send 10,000 people abroad each year on a variety of service projects and internships overseas. All participants receive unparalleled in-country support from our full-time, professional staff to ensure that the experience is safe, worthwhile and fun. <https://www.projects-abroad.org/>

Refugees International offers unpaid internships to students on a rolling basis in spring, summer, or fall. Interns work 15 hours per week for a ten week period at the international offices in Washington D.C. Internship categories include general, development, congressional, and program. refugeesinternational.org

Save the Children offers unpaid internships in Connecticut and Washington D.C. to undergraduate and graduate students. Internships are offered throughout the spring, summer, and fall semesters. Interns are expected to work between 15 and 38 hours per week. Areas include program and policy research, social media projects, communications and campaigns, and fundraising. savethechildren.org

Unite for Sight offers a Global Health Leadership unpaid internship in New Haven, Connecticut, for undergraduate, medical, public health, and graduate students and recent graduates. Commitment ranges from 4-10 weeks (minimum of 6 weeks for summer internship). Intern will work closely with Unite for Sight's CEO on global health programming. uniteforsight.org

U.S. Agency for International Development offers paid and unpaid internships to students enrolled in a college or university. Interns work in the Washington D.C. offices supporting programs in fields such as health, education agriculture, environment, conflict prevention, and humanitarian aid. usaid.gov

U.S. Trade and Development Agency accepts student internship applications on a rolling basis. Candidates will be evaluated on their research and evaluation skills and familiarity with international business and/or foreign assistance. All internships take place in USTDA's office located in Arlington, Virginia and are available to students who are U.S. citizens and currently enrolled in an undergraduate, graduate degree program and first or second year law students. <https://www.usda.gov/about/career-opportunities/internships>

Women's Campaign International is looking for highly motivated people to help fulfill their mission. Their structured internship program was designed to provide undergraduate and graduate students with a unique opportunity to develop both hard and soft skills in a friendly, professional and multicultural environment. While scheduling is flexible, WCI requests that all interns commit to a minimum of 12 hours per week for at least 10 weeks. Please note our internships are located in our Global Headquarters Office in Philadelphia, USA. Our internships are unpaid positions. <http://www.womenscampaigninternational.org/internships/>

World Bank offers three-month summer and winter internships in Washington D.C. to graduate students with a background in economics, finance, human development (public health, education, nutrition, population), social science (anthropology, sociology), agriculture, environment, private sector development, or another related field. Interns are paid and hourly wage. Housing not provided. worldbank.org

World Vision offers 10-12 week internships in Washington D.C. to undergraduates or those who have graduated in the past year. All interns are expected to work between 20 and 40 hours per week and accept their statement of faith (Apostles' Creed). Interns will be paid a monthly stipend of $650. worldvision.org

IN APPRECIATION

Honoring the leadership, commitment and service of international development professionals. We share a deep commitment to preparing graduates who are reflective, collaborative, ethical and compassionate, and who will make enduring contributions to community and the world at large.

THE SOUTHEASTERN PENNSYLVANIA CONSORTIUM FOR HIGHER EDUCATION

The mission of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Consortium for Higher Education is to enhance the quality and efficiency of academic programming, student access, institutional operations, and community outreach at the members' colleges through inter-institutional cooperation and technological linkages.

www.sepche.org

FORUM 2018

Innovation, Impact and Inquiry

June 12– 14, 2018

Walter E. Washington Convention Center

Washington, DC

- Largest gathering of international development and humanitarian professionals
- Topical and diverse breakout sessions and high-level plenary sessions
- Young Professionals Summit convening future leaders and change makers

Registration opens February 2018

www.InterAction.org

Student discount available, contact Forum@InterAction.org for details